

If the story is triggered and driven by an external conflict, extrapersonal or interpersonal, start with the Inciting Incident; introduce it as early as possible. If the story is triggered by an internal conflict of the protagonist, you may need to set up the protagonist first to show how his character flaw triggers the story, how he bring upon himself Inciting Incident and Plot Point I.